WHITTEMORE-SHERRILL HIGHLIGHTS NEW NAIL PATTERNS, FLARED LEGS, AND CURVES IN LATEST LEATHER COLLECTION AT HIGH POINT MARKET

HIGH POINT, N.C. – This fall, Whittemore-Sherrill introduces its latest products, highlighting a bold blend of artisan detail. The new collection leans into trends that redefine classic leather upholstery with modern character and handcrafted flair.

Highlights include unique nailhead trim patterns, which create graphic outlines, subtle accents, and statement detailing that personalize each piece. Wood-carved elements add depth and texture, pairing with gracefully flared legs that give chairs and sofas a sense of lift and motion.

Another highlight is a line of new barstools that bring tailored presence to casual dining spaces. Each stool blends fine materials, refined shapes, and just the right amount of edge, proving that utility and beauty can go hand in hand.

“Today’s customer is looking for more than just comfort; they’re looking for statement pieces with personality,” said Johnny Suddreth, vice president of sales at Sherrill Furniture. “This collection from Whittemore-Sherrill delivers on that demand, combining rich materials with distinctive detailing like flared legs, carved wood accents, and bold nailhead patterns. It is classic craftsmanship with a confident twist.”

1246-01 Chair - The 1246-01 Chair delivers bold appeal with a refined edge. Draped in rich leather, its graceful, curved arms and legs are punctuated by oversized nailhead trim and a decorative rosette detail.

B1112-09 Bar Stool - The B1112-09 Bar Stool combines classic materials and modern simplicity. A leather saddle seat adds comfort and character, while the clean lines of the hardwood base keep the look grounded and versatile.

1412-01 Chair - The 1412-01 Chair brings fresh character to the room with its bold stance and grounded presence. Crafted with wide-flared legs and distinctive angular arms, this piece combines architectural strength with a touch of casual comfort. The leather-upholstered seat and backrest offer a warm contrast to the grain-rich wood frame.
