Winterthur Underfoot

Along the northwestern edge of Delaware lies the foremost museum of American furniture and decorative arts – Winterthur. The former home of Henry Francis du Pont, Winterthur is the American version of Downton Abbey. It is a country estate with all the history, architecture, gardens, decor and drama one would expect to find in a Julian Fellowes screenplay.

Currey & Company has enjoyed more than two decades of collaboration with the museum. A very successful lighting collection inspired by the rich archives housed in their library has continued to flourish since 2003. This April, Currey will add a new category of products for Winterthur with four rug designs from their archives. Made of high-quality wool blend, each rug is hand knotted with subtle coloration created using Swiss dyes. The soothing colors of the Leaves Rug and the playfulness of the Koi Rug carry a more transitional aesthetic and will add comfort and serenity to modern interiors.
